A SOLDIER BUYS A CAR
In Fitchburg, Mass, they're chuelding over the story of a buck private who came into town from near-by Fort Develor and ried to bury an automobile. Sidenmay after saleanan, The everal establishments, eyed the periods omitions and gave him a thorist of the periods of th him a little time. He looked over the cars, selected one and announced that he would buy it.

But the salesman didn't have his whole heart in the deal. "We'd like your consiminating officer's approval of transaction," also suggested, half hoped that this to drop the ideal of the little suggested, half hoped that the history of the little suggested, half hoped that the finance, the purchase?"

The confident reply gave fife automobile man something to worry about: "No I'll give you a check."

The salesman was even more dubious when he saw the name signed to the check, but making the best of what he feared might turn out to be a waste of time, accepted the slip of paper. The car, he agreed, was to be delivered at the fort after it had been serviced—and, he might have cleared.

The check cleared, all right, it was signed by winthop Rockefeller, son of John D. Rockefeller, ir., then a private, now a sergent in Uncle Sam's army. And the report is that there has been an unusual amount of self-kicking anings the sales personnel of several Fitchburg automobile agencies in recent weeks.—Your Life Magazine.
